GUITARIST TIM REYNOLDS COMES TO UM

MISSOULA--

Renowned guitarist Tim Reynolds will perform in concert this Saturday at The University of Montana.

Reynolds takes the stage at the University Theatre at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 13 after an opening act by UM student Burke Jam. Tickets are $17 general admission and $14 for students. They are available at all Tic-It-E-Z outlets or by calling (888) MONTANA.

Best known for his collaborations with Dave Matthews, Reynolds' acoustic and electric guitar-playing has earned him a well-deserved following. His diverse stylings range from progressive rock and straight-up jazz to high-powered funk fusion. He's also handy with the bass guitar, piano, sitar, mandolin, violin and several ethnic percussion instruments.

His latest in a lineup of albums is "Nomadic Wavelength," a solo guitar record that bridges finger-picking folk and borderline electronica for a well-traveled, mood-music sound.

"'Nomadic Wavelength' is a perfectly titled record, in that its name captures the essence of this collection's restless vision," writes reviewer Paul Rosner on MusicToday.com. "From delicate and intricate picking tunes to lively and sometimes funky strumming exhibitions, from dirty blues to the furthest reaches of experimental music, Tim Reynolds' latest set shows a seasoned, resourceful artist at his performing and composing peak. 'Nomadic Wavelength' is an entertaining ride through the mind of a brilliant musician and is well worth investigating."

After nearly two decades in Charlottesville, N.C., Reynolds now calls Santa Fe, N.M., home.
